

glenwhan has recently been described as "the latest gem in Scotland's crown of beautiful gardens", commanding spectacular views over Luce Bay and the Mull of Galloway.

Started in 1979, the picturesque creation was hewn from a hillside covered in bracken and gorse. Two lakes were made by damming up bogs to provide a rich habitat for rare species. The rocky outcrops are home to a wide variety of alpines, sere plants, heathers and conifers.

Winding paths lead through rose arbours to enchanting woodland walks with bluebells, snowdrops and daffodils in spring. Rhododendrons, azaleas and shrub roses nestle together on the 'whinnie knoves' in a blaze of colour. There is also a collection of rare ducks to be discovered.

New areas of this exciting 12 acre garden are now open to the public, including a magnificent Primula Arena and a wooded, stream side walk. Glenwhan has featured on the Beechgrove Garden and Border Television.

Open Daily

Easter - 30 September from 10am-5pm
(rest of the year by appointment)

- Extensive Plant Centre
- Licensed Garden Tea-rooms
- Ample free parking with access to nursery and tea-room
- Evening meals and garden visits catered for by arrangement

Coach parties and evening visits welcomed by prior arrangement

Dogs are welcome in the garden strictly on a lead. Additional dog walk area available.

Disabled facilities provided

Glenwhan is located 7 miles east of Stranraer, 1 mile off the A75 at Dunragit (follow signs)

Glenwhan Gardens, Dunragit, by Stranraer DG9 8PH

Tel/Fax 01581 400222

e-mail tess@glenwhan.freeseerve.co.uk

www.glenwhangardens.co.uk

glenwhan gardens

Dunragit, by Stranraer

Open Daily

Easter - 30 September from 10am-5pm
(rest of the year by appointment)